MARGITA

Adin Ljuca

She'd pull a blanket over her head. She'd say: Although I see buds on branches, spring will not come again. Sometimes she didn't have enough strength even to answer the phone. I'd wait outside the door, she wouldn't open. We'd sit in silence - she on one side, I on the other - waiting for something to happen. And it did happen: spring, in spite of everything, was coming again.
She gathered the remaining strength, slowly picked up the paintbrush, and began looking for me on the canvas.
